

Stanford Anesthesia Fellowship in Medical Education

The Stanford Anesthesia Fellowship in Medical Education is accepting applications. This new postgraduate 12 month Fellowship after residency is tailored to the individual physician's background and goals but is intended to train anesthesiologists for a career in medical education.

The curriculum options include theory, simulation, media, coursework, with an emphasis on scholarship or applied projects to teach medical students, residents, or fellows.

Many resources across the University are available and include the:

- Center for Immersive and Simulation-Based Learning (<http://cisl.stanford.edu/>)
- Stanford Center for Medical Education Research and Innovation (<http://mededresearch.stanford.edu/>)
- AIM lab (<http://aim.stanford.edu/>)

Fellows work 20 % time as an anesthesiology attending in the Stanford Operating Room.

If interested in applying please contact Dr. Pedro Tanaka at <ptanaka@stanford.edu>. Please note a California medical license is required.
